

National Training for Counselors and Mentors

Funding Education Beyond High School

Academic Year 2014 - 2015

National Training for Counselors & Mentors (NT4CM) By the Department of Education

National Training for Counselors and Mentors (NT4CM) covers how to support students and their families in preparing financially for college. In this course, professional trainers will provide comprehensive up-to-date information regarding federal and state student aid programs, scholarship searches, and financial aid fraud. Participants learn how to access free resources such as fact sheets, brochures, and PowerPoint presentations to help them help their students. After the training, participants will receive ongoing information and support.

Topics That Will Be Covered:

- FAFSA Changes: 2014 – 2015
- Federal Policy Update
- Loan Repayment Options
- Social Media Tools
- Q&A Session

Who Should Attend?

High school counselors and other educators who are focused on college readiness.
